MARSHAY / SETUP GUIDE

Edit your talking videos with Claude.

One-time setup, about 10 minutes. After that, every video takes one sentence.

Before you start: a Mac, and a paid Claude plan that includes Claude Code (the Code tab in the Claude desktop app).

01 Download it from GitHub

No GitHub account needed. Go to github.com/MClarke010/talking-head-edit, click the green Code button, then Download ZIP. Double-click the zip to open it. You'll get a folder called talking-head-edit-main in your Downloads.

02 Open Claude Code

Open the Claude desktop app and click the Code tab.

03 Install it

Copy and paste this. Claude asks before downloading anything, so say yes. When it's done, start a new session so Claude picks up the skill.

> Install the talking-head-edit skill from the talking-head-edit-main folder in my Downloads into my personal skills (~/.claude/skills), then check and set up the tools it needs.

04 Make it yours

Grab 3 to 5 reference photos or videos of the look you love: your own past posts, or screenshots of captions you wish were yours. Drag them in and say:

> Set up my video style using these references.

Claude studies the fonts, colors, and caption placement, suggests a look, and saves it once you say yes. Every video after this comes out in your style.

05 Edit your first video

Drag in a raw video of yourself talking and say "Edit this video." Claude cuts it, shows you the cut, then adds your captions, a title, and sound effects. Ask for changes in plain English: "keep the part about my dog," "move the captions up a little."

Tips

Film vertical, at eye level, somewhere quiet.
Your first edit is slower because of the one-time setup. After that, it's quick.
Every version saves as a new file, so you never lose one you liked.

If something's off

Claude doesn't see the skill: start a new session in the Code tab.
Fonts look different: use fonts installed on your computer.

Built by Marshay Bradley. Cutting engine: cut-video by Louise de Sadeleer (MIT License), github.com/louisedesadeleer/cut-video.